

Installation Guide

Prerequisites

The mustStats app cannot be used for gathering mushroom machine statistics unless the “Transmitter” app has been pre-installed on ALL machines you wish to gather information from. The phone app is responsible, only for making requests for certain data and displaying the results. The transmitter app, receives the aforementioned requests, gathers the information, and responds to the phone app with the data requested. The installation of the “Transmitter” app can only be carried out by a Mushroom Machine Company technician.

App Installation

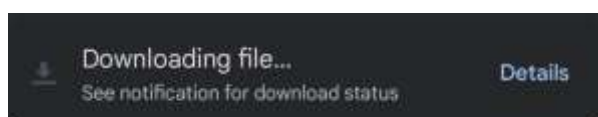

On your Android phone, open your Web Browser, and go to mushroommachine.co.uk and select the GAMECHANGER – Mushstats Mobile App from the menu:

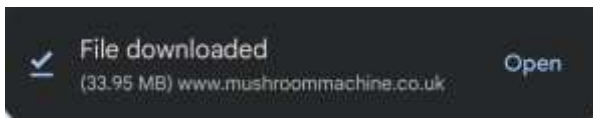

Click on the PDF link to download the app usage document, which will contain a link to install the app on your phone, and further information on using the app.

PDF:

When the app download link is clicked, the app should start downloading to your phone:

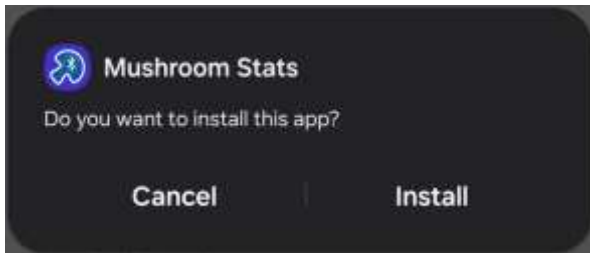

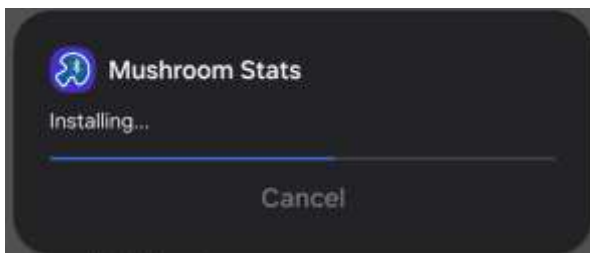

When the file has finished downloading, click “Open”

At some point, GooglePlay may want to scan the app to ensure it is safe. Continue to scan the app.

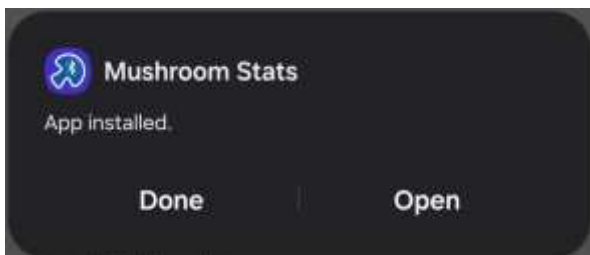

You should then be presented with a screen to Install:

Click Install:

When the installation has completed, click on Open:

The installation will also create an Icon on your phone for opening the app.

The main screen will appear:

Click on the “Scan Machines” button.

On first use, you will be prompt to give location and scan device permissions to the app:

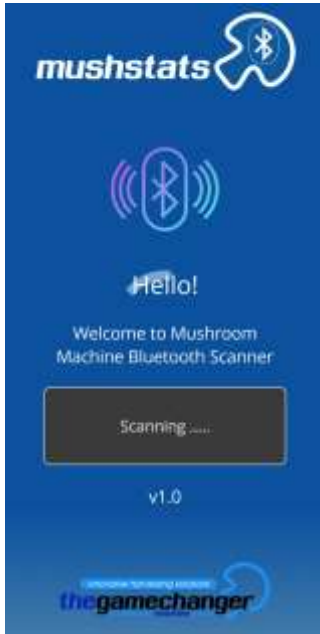

Click on “While using the app” and “Allow”

Warning: Failure to allow both permissions above will render this App useless. If you have mistakenly clicked a different option, these prompts will NOT appear again, and you will need to follow these steps:

- i) Click on Settings (usually a Cog icon)
- ii) Scroll down to and click on Apps
- iii) Scroll down the list of Apps and click on “Mushroom Stats”
- iv) Click on “Permissions”
- v) Click on “Location”, followed by “Allow only while using the app”
- vi) Click back “<” at top.
- vii) Click on “Nearby devices”, followed by “Allow”.

When the required permissions have been granted, the “Scan Machines” button in the app will start to work:

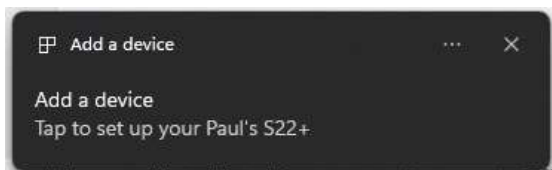

If any nearby Bluetooth devices are in range, their names will be displayed on the following page:

N.B. Not all listed devices are actual Mushroom Machines, but actual machines will have friendly names to allow easy recognition.

In order to transfer data via Bluetooth, your phone needs to be “paired” with each Mushroom Machine. This is a one-off process (per machine, per phone).

If your phone has not yet been paired with a machine, when you first select it from the list, a pairing request will be sent to the machine. It is important that you have access to the machine during this process. You should receive the following pop up (or similar) on the machine:

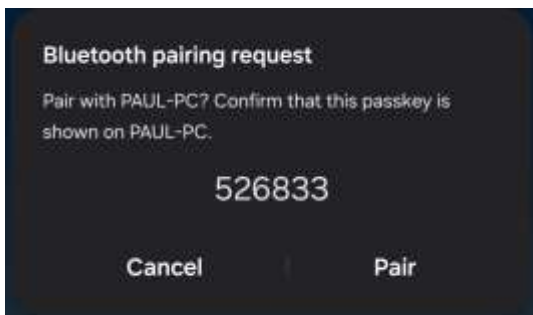

Tap on this when it appears.

On machine the following will appear:

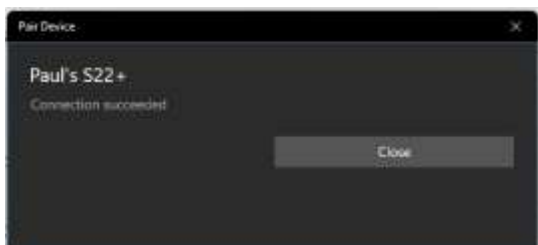

On your phone, this should appear:

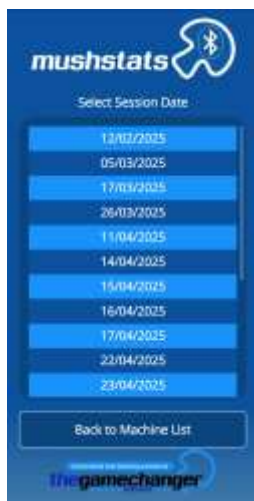

Click "Yes" on the mushroom machine, and "Pair" on your phone.

The machine will display:

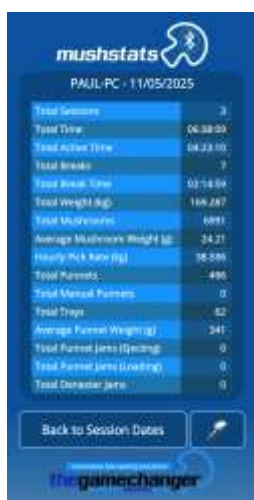

Click "Close"

You phone and the target machine have now been paired and the app should continue, and request session dates from the app:

Scroll through the list and click on the date you wish to view stats for. The app will then request and display stats for the selected date (combined overall multi-session stats):

If there is multiple sessions on that day, you can click on the magnifying glass to view each individual session stats:
